ASQUITH KNOWS

He Can Tell How Easily Strong Man Falls Under Wife's Influence.

WHY HE OPPOSES SUFFRAGE

Wife of Premier Now Has Last Say as to All Political Appointments.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.] London, March 1.-There is a saying in political circles here that one of the reasons why Mr. Asquith is so strongly opposed to woman's suffrage is that he knows from personal experience how easily even a strong man succumbs to the influence of his wife, and that women, therefore, even without the vote, exert political influence enough to safeguard the interests of their sex.

It is said, in fact, that Mrs. Asquith says the final word in regard to all political appointments of importance, and, as a specific instance, it is asserted that she has already picked out the man whom she wishes to succeed the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General of Canada.

The new viceroy is to be no other than her brother. Lord Glenconner, otherwise Sir Edward Tennant, one of the millionaires of the Tennant family. As a result Lord Glenconner will go u) one in the peerage, as Earl of Glenconner and Viscount, Innerleithen, c nner and Viscount Innerleithen, ti ough not until he returns from Cinada.

Beautifully Worked Out.

Beautifully worked Out. The whole thing has been beautifully worked out by Mrs. Asquith, who is determined that her daughter shall, in determined that her daughter shall, in a very few years, be connected by blood with a whole crowd of highsounding titles. Mrs. Asquith will herself be "My Lady" before long, as the termination of the present government will mean the Prime Minister's promotion to the peerage as a viscount, though Mr. Asquith will be entitled,
should be desire it, to an earldom.

The premiership is, by the way, the only political office which by custoff entitles its holder to an earldom, the last instance being that of Benjamin entitles its holder to an earldom, the last instance being that of Benjamin Disraell, who, on being promoted to the Lords, became Earl of Beaconsfield. Strange to say, no Conservative-Premier has since been promoted to the peerage, owing to the post having for so many years been held by a peer—the late Lord Salisbury and his hephew, Mr. Balfour, who refuses to go to the Lords, though, of course, he could do so any day.

Humor of a peculiarly insidious kind is associated with the creation of many peerages, but how; many know the irony of Lord Glendonner? He is the owner of extensive blenching powder works at St. Rollox, Glasgow. The works were established by a Charles Tennant in 1880, and the father of Lord Glenconner was the late Sir Charles Tennant, who was made a baronet in 1885.

One of his daughters married the

One of his daughters married the present Lord Ribblesdale; another married the Hon Alfred Lyttleton, brother of Lord Lyttleton; and the other, the tree famous "Margot" Tennan, married Mr. Asquith as his second wife.
Now Mrs. Asquith is the most ambitious woman in society, and she had long dreamed of her brother as a peer. In due course he succeeded his father lettle when the Lords so violently objected to the passing of the home rule bill, Mr. Asquith was obliged to threaten to create 500 Liberal peers in order to pass that bill in the Lords.

The Prime Minister intended to create his brother-in-law one of the 500, but when Mrs Asquith saw the contempt with which her husband's new the old nobility, she decided that her brother should not be one of the 500, and so, when Mr. Asquith was faced with the absolute necessity of creating his 500 peers. Mrs. Asquith got her husband to create her brother a peer at once, before the final crisis actually occurred, so that he should not have attached to his new title the opprobrium of heing a "1911 peerage."

The deed was quickly done, and for no other reason Sir Charles Tennant was suddenly promoted to the upper chamber as "Lord Glenconner," and the promotion was hurriedly announced.

BONES A DOCTOR'S PROPERTY.

Excitement Soon Subsides When a Mystery Mystery Is Explained.
-Philadelphia. Par, March 1.—There was all sorts of excitement around Eleventh and Linden Streets. Camden, for a time yesterday afternoon, when a number of boys, playday afternoon, when a number of boys, playing on an open lot, unearthed a box that had been buried but a few inches in the ground and which contained a human skull and other bones. Coroner Saunders and several policemen, scenting a murder mystery, soon were on the job, but the sensation was explained when Dr. Rossells claimed the bones. They were his property and had been buried by a servant, who thought the doctor was through with them.
